CHASE AFTER AGUINALDO.

the Mountains When the Chase Ended. WASHINGTON, April 14.-The War Department made public to-day a report of the efforts of a battalion of troops under Major March of the Thirty-third Infantry to intercept the escape of Aguinaldo in northern Luzon early last Decem-The report also describes the engagement resulting in the killing of the Filipino General Gregorio del Pilar. Major March's command had some very daring work in the mountains, part of the fighting being across high gorges and most difficult passes. He had been ordered Gin. Wheaton to go to the assistance of Gen. Young, and was later directed to try and intercapt a part of the Filipino forces which it was believed was guarding Aguinaldo's escape. Major March says:

At Namacpacan I found Gen. Young's column. The battalion had been sent out on a request from Gen. Young for re-enforcements. I picked up a detachment of mounted scouts of the Thirty-third Infantry under Capt. Cunningham who had been operating with Gen. Young. Durwho had been operating with Gen. Young. During the march I found in almost every town letters from Lieut. Gilmore and his party of naval captives, or inscriptions in the prisons, from which I learned of their passage along the same route to the north. Gen. Young informed me that the Insurgents had an intrenched position at Tagudin, on the bank of a river, and that the number was said to be 1,700. The morning of the 27th I left Namacpacan for Tagudin and entered it without resistance, the Insurgents having decamped the day before. Gen. Tinto was said to be in command, with 600 men. I rested for the House, the subject would be taken up and acted on by the committee. For himself he was not in favor of it.

The Quay case was taken up and an amendment in relation to mining laws at Cape Nome was offered by Mr. Stewart (Rep., Nev.) and was discussed by him, in the interest of free mining, until 3 o'clock, when the bill went over without action.

All the private pension bills on the calendar. As in number, were then passed in forty-five minutes. These other bills were passed:

Na,or March next received orders to march from Candon into the mountains, for the purpose of interposing his force between the force with Aguinaldo, commanded by Gregorio del Pilar, at Cervantes en route to Bontoc, and those with Tinio in the province of Abra Major March reports that the march from Candon to Tila Pass was without incident. He adds:

The trail was very narrow, the entire command having to proceed in single file up the mountains. Tila Pass is 4,440 feet high and the rise is extremely rapid. The trail winds up the Tile Mountains in a sharp zigzag. The enemy had constructed a stone barricade across the trail, at a point where it commanded the turns of the zigrag for a considerable distance. This barricade was loop-holed for infantry fire and afforded head wer for the insurgents. On passing on beyond lingey the advance was checked by a heavy are from this barricade, which killed and wounded several men without having its position revealed. brought up the remainder of the command at a double time, losing two men wounded during the run up. On arriving at the point, I located the insurgents' position with my glasses - their fire being entirely Mauser and smokeless powder - the insurgents' position with my glasses—their fire being entirely Mauser and smokeleas powder—by the presence of an insurgent officer, who showed himself freely and directed the fire. On pushing forward the number of my men who were hit increased so rapidly that it was evident that the position could not be taken by a front attack, as the trail only allowed the men to pass one at a kine. On the left of the barricade was a gorge several hundred feet deep. On its right, as we laced it, was a precipitous mountain, which rose 1500 feet above the trail.

"Across the gorge and to the left front of the barricade was a hill, which, while it did not permit of flank fire into the barricade, commanded the trail to its rear, and this point I occupied by ten sharpehooters in command of Sergeant-Major McDougall. He lost one man wounded on getting to the top and when there rendered most effective assistance. I then ordered Lieut Thompkins to take his Company (H) and proceed back on the trail to ascend the slope of the mountain under cover of a slight ridge, which struck the face of the mountain about one hundred and fifty feet from the summit. From there he had a straight-up climb to the top, where the men pulled themselves up by twigs and by hand. The ascent took two hours, during which the enemy kept an incessant and accurate fire, which they varied by rolling down stones on our heads. When Thomppin's men appeared upon the crest of the hills over their heads, he had the command of two other trenches which were constructed in the rear of the barricade I have described, around a shapp turn in the trail and which were onstructed in the star of the barricade I have described, around a shapp turn in the trail and which were sloped. a sharp turn in the trail and which were also held by insurgents. He opened fire upon them and I charged the first barricade at the same time and rushed the enemy over the hill. We found eight dead bodies on the trail and the bushes which grew at the edge of the gorge were broken and bloodstained, where dead or wounded men fell through. Among the dead bodies was that of Gregorio del Pilar, the General commanding the insurgent forces. I have in my possession his shoulder straps, French field glass, which gives the range to objects, official and private papers, and a mass of means of identification. The insurgents' report of their losses in this fight is fifty-two, given to me after I reached Gervantes. My loss was two killed and nine wounded. Lieut Thompkins and the men of Company H deserved the highest possible credit for their performances in getting up the mountain in the flank movement; it was exceptional in every way.

"Veginaldo was reported at Cervantes, so I harp turn in the trail and which were also their performances in getting up the mountain in the flank movement; it was exceptional in every way.

"Aguinaldo was reported at Cervantes, so I made a forced march to that town, arriving there at 6 30 P. M. I placed twenty-live men under Lieut True to hold the pass, and also to watch a mountain trail which emerges from Bontoc and by which Aguinaldo might possibly escape to the north. At Cervantes I learned that the force at Tila Pass was a picked force from Aguinaldo's bodyguard, and that it was wiped but of existence. Aguinaldo, with his wife and two other women and a handful of men, were fiving in the convent at Cervantes, perfectly secure in his belief that Tila Pass was an impregnable position; it was the insurgents." Thermopylae, Upon learning of the death of Pilar, Aguinaldo hastily gathered together his effects, and with two of his women on horse back and his wife in a litter carried by Ignorrotes, left the town. I wrived in the evening of the 3d and spent the 4th in resting the men and sifting evidence of his whereabouts. A large number of Spanish bisoners were abandoned in his flight, and from their tales and those of natives, I located him as passing through Cayan.

The road force of Gen. Venacio Concepton, Aguinaldo's other of staff, with a letter proposing an interview, with the suspension of hostilities in view. I told his officers that there could be no suspension of hostilities, but that if the General and his staff wanted to come in and surrender I would guarantee them good treatment and would consent to their proposed interview at 3 P. M. He came in and surendered and was sent to Cervantes under thange of a guard. A number of the men were now exhausted by the climb to Cayan, so I weeded out the command again and set out after Aguinaldo with eighty-six men. All this time I had been living on the country, paying or giving receipt for what I took. I now got into a country which produces very little besides yams, and in which the marching was extremely severe. However, I bushed on to Baguen, near Bontoc, where I found natives hostile to Aguinaldo, and learned that he had gone on through the town of Bontoc to Tuluben, evidently making for Bauaug and the road to Bayomoong, three days before. He was gaining on me with fresh ponies and bearres, and with his party unincumbered. I therefore rounded up the Spanish prisoners throughout the region and returned to Cervantes. The number of prisoners released was 575, including 150 friars."

Receipts at Havana Custom House. WASHINGTON, April 14.-The Division of Customs and Insular Affairs at the War Department gave out for publication to-day the statement that the receipts at the Havana Satement that the receipts at the Havana Custom House for the first three months of 1900 were $3,126,313, as against $2,348,888 for the same period of 1899. The importance of the statement lies in the fact that the combarison shows an increase for the three months of 1900 over the three months of 1884 of $777,425. As the quarter mentioned includes the shortest month of the year-february—with only tweaty-two working days, the receipts were remarkably large. The February receipts were $167,632, while those for March were $1,008,233.

Forming Qualifications For Voters. WASHINGTON, April 14.-Secretary Root and Gen. Sanger completed to-day their examination of the final drafts of three statements of the Cuban census. These statements do not represent the entire work of the census returns, but have been specially prepared for the information of Gen. Leonard Wood in forming qualifications for voters in the island. Copies were mailed to Gen. Wood this afternoon and were mailed to Gen. Wood this afternoon and by direction of the Secretary of War will be published in Havana before they are made public in the United States.

This part of the census is regarded as the most important at this time, as it is admitted that the question of forming qualifications for voters at the coming elections in Cuba is a very difficult one. An idea of the difficulty presented can be gained from the fact that the census statements sent to Gen. Wood to-day show that not more than 15 per cent, of the natives of the island can read and write. It is thought that this will prevent Gen. Wood from imposing an educational qualification on the voters, as it would practically bar about 85 per cent, of the entire population of the island.

Secretary Root said this afternoon that he had not received from Gen. Wood any report as to the number of Spaniaris who have elected to preserve their allegiance to Spain. He had cabled Gen. Wood for the information, but did not expect it for several days, as it would take time to hear from the many interior registration offices. It is expected that Gen. Wood will receive Gen. Sanger's census returns by Wednesday morning, and will probably arrange for their publication in Havana on Wednesday or Thursday. He will telegraph in advance to Gen. Sanger the day they are to be published in Cuba, and Gen. Sanger will then make the statements public in this country. Following their publication Gen. Wood will immediately arrange for the elections that are expected to be held early in May. by direction of the Secretary of War will be

DAY-LONG GARDINER TALK.

PECRHAM AND UNTERMYER AT IT OVER THE MARCH PRESENTMENT.

Attack a Presentment as if It Were an Indictment - Untermyer's Precedent - No Decision - York's Offer to Grand Jury. All day yesterday counsel argued before

Judge Foster in the General Sessions on the District Attorney's motion to have expunged from the records of the court so much of the presentment of the March Grand Jury as reflected upon him. Wheeler H. Peckham. representing the Attorney-General, objected to an order allowing the District Attorney the opportunity to inspect the minutes of the Grand Jury bearing on the presentment. He insisted that the Attorney-General should have been notified of any application to inspect the minutes because he represented the people and that Asa Bird Gardiner, merely an individual in the proceeding, a self-constituted defendant to a presentment which he did not have to answer and against which he did not have to defend himself, had no right to such

Mr. Untermyer said that Col. Gardiner had the same right to see the minutes as any person under indictment had to see the evidence. Mr. Peckham then drew a distinction between evidence and minutes and explained at great length the difference, Mr. Untermyer laughed, and Judge Foster sald that he did not know of any public interest that was saorificed by the granting of the order. He asked whether the District Attorney would be injured if the order was vacated, and Mr. Untermyer said that he did not object.

The order was vacated, and then began all over again an argument to allow the District Attorney access to the minutes. Judge Foster reserved decision, but allowed the minutes to be filed for the purpose of the discussion. "Here is a great mass of indiscriminate testimony," exclaimed Mr. Peckham. "We must decline to discuss the papers so filed." The minutes of the Grand Jury were turned over to Mr. Untermyer. Argument on the main question began with Mr. Untermyer's contending that the Grand Jury had received advice from persons other than their legal adviser, even requiring the District Attorney to leave the room for the purpose of receiving Dr. Parkhurst's advice. Page 123 of the minutes was read, as follows:

Juror-How would you suggest that we proceed in this matter in order that we may obtain satisfactory results?

Dr. Parkhurst—In 1892 the same question was put to me and I advised that an indictment would not bring the best results. I advised a presentment. Politically the results are immense.

Senate bill was passed authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to "prescribe rules and regulations for the procurement of timber and stone for domestic and industrial purposes, to be used only in the Indian Territory from land belonging to any of the Five Civilized Tribes, and to fix the rates of royalty to be paid therefor, and to collect the same for the benefit of said tribes.

"The Grand Jury of Kings county at that time made a presentment expunged. Argument was heard and Judge Moore granted the motion and the presentment was struck from the records. Drawing a Net in Irondequoit Bay. ROCHESTER, April 14.-Benjamin Jones was shot and mortally wounded in a midnight encounter between poschers and game protectors at "Oklahoma," on the shore of Irondequoit Bay, last night. A car on the Glen Haven road brought Jones to this city this morning and he is now lying at the Homœopathic Hospital with a bullet in his chest, which the physicians have vainly tried to extract.

Encounters between poachers and the game protectors are of almost nightly occurrence along the bay. Last night Game Protector A D. Wellman, and John Bufford and John Lockhart, his duputies, placed themselves on the watch. Oklahoma is near the point where the hav opens into Lake Ontario, and the fish pass through the shallow outlet in large numbers. Wellman and Bufford learned that a net had been set there, and the officers rowed silently out through the reeds and secreted themselves near the bank. They soon heard another boat approaching and the moon showed them that attached to the presentment, of insincerity and subterfuge.

"The evidence upon which this presentment was found can never be brought before your Honor," said Mr. Peckham. "It never will be brought before you. It is impossible to duplicate here the conduct, manner, hesitancy, auggestion, innuendo upon which the Grand Jury acted as it saw and experienced them. Until you have such evidence before you as the grand Jury had before it you cannot, if you would, exculpate the District Attorney. The corruption and vice existing in this city are so evident that no sane, honest man questions their existence and there is no better proof of an office bolder's culpability than his assertion that he does not know of the existence of that corruption and vice."

"The prese intenent simply contends, and the records now say that there is an omission of anything to show that the District Attorney did anything to show that the District Attorney falls in his duty, is an obstructionist rather than an aid, he must be borne with?"

Decision on the motion was reserved. On the argument it was stated that President York of the Police Board halappeared before the Grand Jury and, waiving all legal righ's he might have with regard to answering questions tending to incriminate or degrade himself, urged the Grand Jury to examine him as fully as the Wished to for the purpose of developing if possible the foundation of corruption stories published by the papers, and particularly the story of a "gambling commission" which the possible the foundation of corruption stories publishers of the paper it appeared in assured the Grand Jury they could not corroborate of any personal knowledge.

HIS TRIP TO EUROPE POSTPONED.

Bendix Lost Eight $100 Bills After Playing Leon Bendix of 114 Second street was to sail for Germany this week, but is likely to postpone his trip as he lost $800 early yesterday morning after playing pinochle with his friends, Ernest Bornheimer, a saloon keeper of 35 First avenue, Charles Herder, a waiter, of 168 East Houston street, and Eric Gurkin, a cook, of 47 First avenue. He caused the arrest of his friends, and when they were arraigned in the Yorkville police court yesterday he said that he Yorkville police court yesterday he said that he had eight $100 bills in his waistcoat pocket when he sat down to play pinochle in Bornhelmer's place. At the wind-up of the game he displayed the $800. They all had drinks and he started for home. When he arrived there he missed his money and thought some of his friends had taken it as a poke. He went back and accused them of taking it. They thought he was playing a joke on them and laughed at him, but they saw he was in earnest when he caused their arrest.

HISPANIA LOST A SPAMAN

And Five More Went Overboard Who Volun teered to Try and Save Him. The Hamburg-American freight steamship Hispania, which arrived yesterday from Hamburg, was storm-battered all through her long burg, was storm-battered all through her long voyage and lost a man in the tumult in midocean on April 4. He was Fritz Ludweigheet, able seaman, who was standing aft near the rail when the creat of a comber came over the quarter and carried him overboard. The slip had just enough way on to keep her head to the swells, and Ludweigheet was seen for several minutes by his shipmates struggling in the waves. Five of them volunteered to save him and launched a lifeboat. Just after it cleared the ship's side it was struck by a heavy sea and capsized. The five men were rescued by lines tossed to them from the ship. By this time Ludweigheet had disappeared.

During the year a determined effort has been made by the Alumnie of Wellesiey College to liquidate the college debt and to establish a permanent endowment fund. This work has received new impetus recently from the liberreceived new impetus recently from the liberality of John D. Rockefeller who has given $100.000 toward the endowment of the college upon condition that the existing debt, amounting to about the same sum, is cancelled by June next. Much interest is left, therefore, by the friends of Weilesley in the entertainment for the benefit of the endowment fund to be held at the Waldorf-Astoria on Monday evening. April 23. The programme consists of original monologues by Beatrice Herford with music by Franz Kaltenborn.

Tired and Overstrained Nerves are Given Strength and Vigor by

The Spring Medicine. M. Elizabeth Messick, Emerson Institute, Mobile, Alabama, writes:

"I was very weak and extremely nervous. For several months I used prescribed tonics to no avail. I declared the first dose of Paine's Celery Compound made me feel better, and was laughed at, but the Compound brought me the desired strength, and in the fall I returned to school.

"I am now in the Home Missionary Work among the Freedmen of the South. Never one year could I have finished without Paine's Celery Compound. At home we have a large family and use the Compound constantly in the spring. We owe much to your medicine."

Paine's Celery Compound makes nerve fibre, nerve force restores the bodily health.

PALLOWS'S CODE BILLS.

Governor Gives a Hearing on the Measures Regarding the Supreme Court Calendars. ALBANY, April 14 .- Gov. Roosevelt gave a hearing to-day on Assemblyman Fallows's two code bills, providing that causes on the preferred and general calendars in the New York City Supreme Court shall be tried in the order of their issue, and that the calendars be published in the law journals for the information of the attorneys interested. Mr. Franklin Pierce of New York city appeared in favor of the measures. No one appeared personally in opposition to the bills, though Gov. Roosevelt said that he had received letters from Supreme Court Justices Henry R. Beekman and Edgar M. Cullen, as well as the New York City Bar Association and Cephas Brainard, against the the bills, all declaring that the Judges' control of the calendar should not be restricted. About thirty letters had been received from practising attorneys, including Mr. Frank Moss, counsel to the Mazet Committee, in favor of the bills. The Governor will communicate with the New York city Judges and several prominent New York city lawyers before he takes action on the bills.

The Governor has postponed from next Tuesday until the following day at noon the hearing on Schator Ford's bill providing that a summons issuing out of a New York city municipal court shall only be served by regularly appointed Marshal.

AMICABLE AGREEMENT REACHED ON

He Makes a Concession in the Trial of Libel Suits-Two Civil Judges to Sit With the Military Officer at the Head of the Court.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. HAVANA, April 14.— Governor General Wood's order increasing the powers of police courts resulted in an extra meeting of his Cabinet to-day. The newspapers this morning stormed against the whole order. They not only objected to the clause referring to false statements or libels, but they objected to the make-up of the court itself. They alleged that it was a clear case of one-man power by the military authorities and a violation of the
